Week 2

What do I want to learn or understand better?

I'd like to learn even more about scrum since it is such a big concept, and more specifically for this week, how the backlog works in unison with the sprints and how you set up the sprints. I've worked with sprints and backlogs before but then there wasn't much emphasis put on them so for this time around I hope to be able to learn to use them in a more effective and serious way.

How can I help someone, or entire team, to learn something new?

Since I have prior knowledge about how epics, user stories and tasks, and how they are derived from a project, I've tried to share my understanding about them during group discussions.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of scrum?

As of now I've attended all but one lecture and through these I've gotten a better understanding about scrum as a whole, things I haven't fully understood from the lectures such as the extent of a scrum masters responsibilities, I've tried to research myself in order to find relevant information online.

What is my contributions the team's deliveries?

This week I've participated in group meetings and discussions about our mock-up and our backlog. I've also helped to create the Trello board and added user stories to it.
